

ACTUALIZATION OF THE PHILOSOPHICAL FIELD OF PHILOSOPHICAL PSYCHOLOGY

The article has been devoted the exposure of new perspective directions of research philosophical psychology. Philosophical psychology as philosophy of the soul on the joint of philosophical anthropology and psychology can get new directions of development and become the field for philosophical reflections exactly in a native culture. By the feature of the eastslavonic approach to the soul and problem of correlation the soul/body is religious (orthodox) basis, as well as co-operation of ontology and psychology, that represents connections of separate individuality with general life. An analysis of modern desecularization tendencies with attention to the soul of man is continuation of eastslavonic philosophical anthropology. Perspective direction of research here is an analysis of the soul in the conditions of update of religious consciousness in the new anthropological and social terms. The revival of interest to religion today actualize development of this variant of philosophical psychology – in modern anthropological and social terms and in connection with the patriotic structures of thought of Ukrainians. Problem of combination personal and national appeared in nativ philosophy, culture, psychology in connection with the last events in Ukraine. The revival of national spirituality requires the forming of the own deep system of spiritual-religious organization, ukraine-centrist model of the world. Another interesting direction of development philosophical psychology is research of nature of psychological fact - with the use of hermeneutical methodology. Actual here is an adjusting of the proper mechanisms of interpretation and understanding, that is possible within the framework humanitarian going near personality and its spiritual life.

Keywords: philosophical psychology, soul, psychophysiological dualism, christian anthropology, national identity, psychological fact.